THE WOOL SCHEDULE.

It is interesting to note that the Wall Street Journal favors the proposed wool schedule and takes up the matter from the point of view that it is best for the ultimate consumer. One would hardly expect the sedate mouthpiece of the money interests of the nation to start in defending the "common people." However, it does, in the following manner:

"It should be possible to approach the case of the wool grower diplomatically. His friends protest that he will become extinct if he is not protected by a high duty on wool. The home consumer, and not the foreign grower, pays this tax, including producers of other commodities, and the question is whether the Western wool grower is worth keeping alive at such a price.

"Let it be premised that his case has been largely made on false pretenses. He is classed as a farmer and he most emphatically is nothing of the kind. He is less a farmer in fact than the squatter of Australia with his 60,000 sheep. He does not farm in any sense of the word. He pastures sheep over a large tract, allows for a certain percentage of deaths from cold and misadventure; the wages and board of a few lonely herders; the perforce cost of shearing; and then realizes on his second-rate cross-bred wool of his stringy mutton, according to which market looks best.

"There are 57,000,000 sheep in this country; and in the British Islands, which could be comfortably tucked away in the state of Montana, there were 32,000,000 sheep in 1910. These were sheep of quality, bred scientifically, either for the butcher or for their wool. The British grower takes a great deal of trouble with his sheep and gets results. Our grower takes no trouble at all, and expects congress to protect him from foreign competition. But without this handicap the sheep on the South Downs of England, and even in Scotland, can graze in the open practically every day of the year. If they are given the proper attention in the matter of folding where necessary, extra feed in winter, and special care in the lambing season, Montana is a poor imitation of such a condition as that, and as such states become enclosed our happy-go-lucky sheep grower will be without pasture. Can any protection we can afford stay the irretrievable advance of the wool fence?"

"Vermont in some parts, and notably in the Green Mountains, breeds in fair quantities sheep for the table not inferior to Welsh mutton, if not equal to the South Down or kindred varieties. Such sheep, however, are more expensive to raise here than in England, or the sheep-growing parts of the continent of Europe, for the reason that they must spend some months in the winter under cover, and must be fed in the absence of pasture. This is a great handicap, and is shared to some extent by Kentucky, although the prospects for the Alleghenies are better than farther north. Certainly better and more profitable varieties can be bred there, by taking considerably more pains than the Western sheep grower cares to exert.

"Here is the question for the taxpayer. Does he care to put his hand in his pocket all the time to support an industry which has done nothing for itself, and one which is manifestly dwindling, in spite of three-quarters of a century of protection?"

CANAL REQUIREMENTS.

Work on the Isthmus of Panama progresses without interruption, practically without cessation. Chief Engineer Goethals has every detail of it so well in hand that operations on the gigantic undertaking move like clock-work. The farther the excavation proceeds, thanks to constant mechanical improvement, the less it costs for the removal of dirt and stone. Methods are so far advanced beyond those pursued at the beginning that it would be possible to duplicate the present cut at a very much lower cost. Engineers the world over are taking off their hats to the unassuming man who is performing so quietly the feat of the ages.

He is not only the chief engineer of works, he is also chairman of the Isthmian canal commission. Construction of the waterway, one would think, should involve responsibility enough for any single individual. That has been fully provided for, however. The plans need only to be executed, and their execution is in the hands of a perfect organization. Colonel Goethals is less concerned at present with the uncompleted canal than with the future of the completed canal. And in this connection he is striving for the accomplishment of three things: ownership by the United States of every acre of land within the Canal Zone, the establishment of rates that will enable ship-owners throughout the world to plan for use of the waterway and the construction of docks for protecting and facilitating the movement of shipping.

With regard to each and all of these subjects, the engineer is merged in the statesman. Colonel Goethals is thinking faster and more clearly, and thinking faster and more clearly, and seeking further, than many whose speech, business and duty it is to be mentally alert to all the higher interests of the American people. He is desirous of having all the possibilities of the canal developed. He is looking at once to its safety and to its commercial success. Regarding it as an achievement representative of American genius, courage and enterprise, he is now asking that precautions be taken which will insure its usefulness to the commerce of the country and the world. He asks that those things that need to be done, be done in time. So far, he has not been able to hold the attention of congress. It is distracted by other things. It does not, apparently, realize as clearly as he that the day when a vessel can pass through the canal is very near. But he is not the man to be swayed from his course by indifference or neglect. He knocks now at the door of congress almost daily. If he fail within reasonable time to attract the attention he is entitled to, it seems quite certain that public opinion will go to his aid.

FLAG DAY.

One hundred and thirty-four years ago the American flag, the stars and stripes, were recognized as the emblem of the struggling colonists seeking freedom from England's tyrannical rule. It was not fixed upon a long time ago, but has become one of the notable days of the year. Patriotic societies have interested themselves in making its observance as general as possible, and governors have issued proclamations urging the display of the national emblem on this day.

From the realms of history we are told that Betsy Ross, a Philadelphia woman, sewed the first design for the flag; that General Washington designed it. We are told that it was first displayed on the high seas by a little ship that fearlessly sailed out to wage war upon the English marine. History further relates that the red and white stripes were made to signify the thirteen colonies; the blue field with the stars originally had thirteen also, one for each colony. Today they have one for each state.

The Stars and Stripes today wave over lands unknown in the Revolutionary war. It floats from the arctic zone to the tropics. It has been planted at the North Pole and has gone in to distant Africa. It has waved over the palaces of the Montezumas and the hazy but of the Philippines. It two-thirds encircles the globe, from the Atlantic coast to the far-off Philippines. It has sealed the walls of the forbidden city of Peking, with the Eagles of Germany, the Lion of England, the Rising Sun of Japan.

Flag Day should be a lesson to the rising generation. It should be a day upon which the significance of the stars and stripes, of our glorious flag of red, white and blue, should be impressed upon the boys and girls of this country. Let the flags be displayed wherever lives an American citizen, at home or abroad, to tell the world of our glory and greatness.

Janesville is going to celebrate the fourth year in a manner that has not been attempted for many years. It took her well if the property owners took a trifle more pains with their lawns and yards to see that the city gives a neat appearance to the visitors. Burdocks on the main streets, straw-covered bushes in the parks may do for Janesville people to gaze upon, but will hardly present a favorable impression upon the thousands that will be here.

Down in New York state a little tribe of Indians is holding its nine hundred and thirty-ninth reunion. It has occupied a little tract of land of fifty-three acres since 1700. Evidently its descendants are not as grasping as are those of some other families.

June should restrain itself in trying to see how many heat and cold records it can break. Sizzling weather or one day and sleet and snow the next are not a good combination for crops or health.

Madero is going to make a speech-making trip through Mexico and tell his revolutionists to behave themselves and vote for the people's choice—Madero.

So they have found former President Castro hiding in a vessel which was bound for a port near his dear native country, that he ruled and oppressed for so many years.

West Point has a graduating class of eighty-three this year. That should encourage the croakers somewhat as to the future of the army.

Heart to Heart Talks.

THE PAYROLL.

In this world, whether you buy on credit or pay cash, you must settle for everything you get.

And—In return for everything you do, every effort you make—whether you get your envelope Saturday night or whether the paymaster is slow with the payroll—you get what is coming to you.

You must pay. You must get full pay. You must pay as you go—or afterward. Whether you ride on a pay-as-you-enter car or put the nickel in the slot at the end of the trip, you must pay or you cannot ride.

You get your pay as you go—or afterward. Like the street car conductors who deduct their day's wages from their "turn in," you may get what is coming to you daily, or if not, be assured of this: If you have to wait for your pay you get interest after maturity.

Now, what you do is either good, bad or indifferent.

If you do good work you may be sure you will get good pay. If you do bad work you will draw evil wages—the wages of sin. If you do indifferent work you will get indifferent pay.

Is it not so?

Here is a rich man who has made his money by compromises with his conscience. Credit him up with his big house and his motorcar and his stocks and bonds. Now charge with betrayal of trust and a good memory of it, an extravagant and ungrateful family, —I'm going too fast?

Well, strike the balance. The man is getting his pay right along.

And you?

Credit your ups and charge your downs. Charge the tears and credit the smiles. Put down on opposite sides of the ledger the days of cloud and the days of sunshine.

The trial balance shows overwhelmingly on the credit side.

Now put down the good things you have done, and the bad things, and the indifferent.

Does the account show "in red?"

Then you better begin to get more daily credits on the journal. Because good pays good, bad pays bad, each after its kind. But always the pay.

You pay for what you get and you get what you pay for.

Emerson called it the law of compensation.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. Macy.

SHAYS' REBELLION.

One of the most perilous times in the history of the United States was the period just after the close of the Revolutionary war and before the government had become firmly established. Every community was inclined to be a law unto itself. Even in puritanical Massachusetts there was a little rebellion against the state government that looked serious for a time. It is known as "Shays' Rebellion," taking its name from one of the leaders, Daniel Shays, who had been a gallant officer in the War for Independence. The grievances were, the large salary paid the governor of the state, the aristocratic character of the state senate, and the burdensome taxes. The rebellion lasted from August, 1785, till the following February. Shays had a large following, and there were several conflicts with the state militia. The opposing forces, however, evidently did not get dangerously near each other, for only three men were killed during the entire "war." The leaders were tried and convicted, but were eventually pardoned. Shays lived till 1825, and in his old age was pensioned for his gallant services during the Revolution.

"The roses and the lilacs have had a heap of praise from birds and other willies, in prose and scurrilous lays. The lilacs and the roses are surely good as wheat, and in their things simply can't be beat.

And then the lovely daisy appeals to every soul, and stirs the poet lazy to write a rhapsody. The violet, so modest, deep in the shady dell, would stir a bard of sawdust, and make him dance and yell. O, all the blooming flowers that make their grand stand plays, about the garden borders and in the woodland ways, are splendid in their beauty; they're Nature's diadem; it's surely no one's duty, I say, to knock on them. In summer dawns I greet them; they fill me with delight; but when I come to eat them they do not taste just right. You seek them and pursue them, their fragrance is so sweet; but when you start to chew them, they knock you off your feet. Their flavor's always datter than that of low grade chalk; the onion, in this matter, can beat the rose a block. And I the pen of Bunyan I'd write a corking book about the humble onion, that solace to the cook. The gaudy rose can beat it at putting on the style, but when you come to eat it, it lends by half a mile.

ROSES AND GRACEFUL POSES THEY THINGS simply can't be beat.

TWO SPECIAL TRAINS FROM MILWAUKEE ON THE THIRD OF JULY

ONE WILL BRING BATTERY A, THE SECOND FIVE COMPANIES OF INFANTRY.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE

Colonel Joachim of First Regiment Has Issued Orders For All His Regiment to Come to Janesville.

Janesville will be the military center of Wisconsin on July 3rd, 4th and 5th. Not only will one-third of the fighting force of the great state be here, but also the crack battery P of the Fifth Field Artillery United States Army with their band and some one thousand ex-soldiers of the late unpleasantness with Spain and a large number of officers of the Illinois National Guard who will be present to witness the military maneuvers and sham battles.

Chairman Carl Buchholz and Fred E. Lane of the Industrial and Commercial club were in Milwaukee last evening for a conference with the captain of companies A, P, K, D and E that are located there and completed arrangements for their arrival here on a special train the evening of July third. This will make the second troop train to pull out of Milwaukee over the Chicago & Northwestern railroad on Monday, July 3, bound for Janesville.

Battery A will come on a special train that will leave Milwaukee at three in the afternoon and will arrive in Janesville at five thirty. It will be met at the Northwestern depot by a band and will march directly to its camp grounds on Washington street. This train will consist of three horse cars, two flat cars and a baggage and two passenger cars. The second train will consist of two baggage cars and six coaches.

The infantry will also be camped on Washington street near Magnolia Ave. and will go into camp immediately upon arrival in the city. The men will be equipped with their shelter tents and blankets and will camp as though on field service. It is expected that each company will bring its full quota of men and will be composed of the best material composed of companies A, D, P, E and K.

MORE COMING THAN WERE EXPECTED TO

INTER CLUB RUN FROM CHICAGO TO JANESVILLE A BIG THING FOR THE CITY.

ENTRIES ARE GROWING

Expected Now That Two Hundred And Sixty Will Come on the Run, Thursday.

It is expected now that instead of two hundred auto enthusiasts to enter the race, Janesville will be the scene for some two hundred and sixty, and perhaps more. In the present list of entries in the entry list of the reliability run of the Chicago Athletic association continues.

George S. Parker today received a letter from John G. Delong, who was instrumental in bringing the travelers, stating that the list of entries now totaled thirty-one cars for the Chicago Athletic Association, and the Chicago Automobile Association had twenty-two, which meant that each club would have thirty cars each in the contest. Averaging four men to a car with the official's cars, and five or six in the non-contesting cars, will bring the total figures way above those first estimated.

Mr. DeLong will come in one of the official cars accompanied by Voodruff, the sporting editor of the Tribune, and Mr. Mantle, the Sunday editor. James Aloysius Durkin, dean of the copy boys, will be one of the visitors in the DeLong car. It was Durkin who took the message from the Tribune to Ambassador Choate in London. In the late Nineties, and being instructed to cable back his impressions of America's representative at the Court of St. James, he cabled: "Choate is a stiff."

The first car is expected to arrive in Janesville at four o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and it is expected that the unusual number of visitors will crowd the local hotels and garages to the limit, and it may be necessary to throw open some private homes.

JANESVILLE PEOPLE ON A MONSTER LINER WHICH SAILS TODAY

Mr. and Mrs. David Holmes Sailed From Southampton This Morning On the Olympic.

Janesville will be especially interested in the maiden trip of the Olympic, which sailed from Southampton this morning amid the plaudits of thousands who witnessed its start, owing to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. David W. Holmes, of this city, who have been spending several weeks in European travel as passengers on board.

It was not until the last minute this morning it was certain that the big liner would sail, owing to the threatened seamen strike, but dispatches state that the owners settled with the strikers and the vessel left on schedule. It is commanded by Capt. Smith, R. N., one of the most noted of the trans-Atlantic seamen and is the finest and largest vessel now afloat.

The Olympic, which is a triumph of marine architecture, sailed gracefully out of the harbor, carrying a complement of passengers, 1,300, besides a crew of 50 officers and seamen, 350 engineers, 350 men in the engine room and stokehold, a chief cook and forty assistants and innumerable other employees.

The Olympic is unapproached not only in size, but in the matter of luxurious appointments. In every respect the big ship is a floating hotel. Dining rooms, smoking rooms, cafe, a library and even gardens are among the features of the big vessel. There are a cool avenue of Oriental palms, beds of roses and carnations, and arbors skillfully contrived by expert gardeners. Among other interesting innovations are a swimming bath, sufficiently deep for diving, and a skating rink.

The suites of cabins are in their design and fittings equal to the rooms of the finest hotels in Europe. There are many dining rooms, the principal one of which is elaborately decorated and seats no fewer than six hundred. Those who wish to take their meals on deck can do so at a "verandah" cafe situated on one of the upper decks fifty feet above the level of the water. Another novelty is a gymnasium. The cabin surgeons are an English chaplain, with high-backed stools of an ancient oak, and hand-hewn tables. It will be possible, at any hour of the day or night, for a passenger to use the grillroom. The palm garden is still another refuge for those who weary of the confines of the ship during the passage.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes sailed from New York, landing in Italy in April and have spent the interim in travelling through Italy, Austria, Germany, France and England. They expect to land in New York on June 20.

From Edgerton: Charles Lusk, was today sentenced to thirty days in the county jail here by Justice of the Peace Scott of Edgerton for being drunk and disorderly. He is from Stouten.

WON THE CONTENTION BEFORE COMMISSION

RAILWAY COMMISSION MAKES IMPORTANT RULING RELATIVE TO FARE TO SOUTH JANESVILLE.

FARE TO BE REDUCED

Ten Cent Fare Charged Is Declared to Be Exorbitant and Commission Orders It Reduced.

At Madison today the State Railway Commission made an important decision relative to the ten cent fare charged by the Rockford & Interurban company for carrying passengers from Janesville to South Janesville, where the new Northwestern yards are located, declaring the fare exorbitant and ordering it reduced to five cents.

The case was brought before the commission by Otto Schleicher and was argued some months ago. Mr. Schleicher made the complaint himself and fought the case through and deserves much credit for his work in the interests of the railroad men and residents of the southern part of the city, who will be directly affected by the decision.

The new rate will directly affect all train crews that now stop at the yards and will permit the men to come up town for a five cent fare if they desire and not have to pay the ten cents formerly required. The Interurban contended that there was not enough travel to make the change necessary or paying.

TO QUIZ ROOSEVELT ON STEEL TRUST

EX-PRESIDENT AND J. P. MORGAN MUST TESTIFY, SAY STEEL
PROBERS.

TENNESSEE DEAL THE ISSUE

F. B. Kellogg, Government Prosecutor in Standard Oil Case, Admits He Is Counsel for Subsidiary Companies in Steel Combines.

Washington, June 14.—Ex-President Roosevelt and J. P. Morgan will be summoned to appear before the Stanley steel trust investigating committee of the house when it holds sessions in New York, to give testimony on how certain railroads owned by the steel trust are able to declare enormous dividends on small capitalization.

Chairman Stanley made this known when he declared there was so much in connection with the steel corporation be desired cleared up that he intended bringing before the committee everyone who could throw any light on the subject.

Tennessee Deal the Issue.
Colonel Roosevelt will be asked about his tacit consent to the absorption of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company by the steel corporation, and Mr. Morgan will be queried concerning the sale of 1907 and the financial transactions preceding and consummating the deal through which the Tennessee company stock was turned over to the steel corporation.

Frank H. Kellogg, special counsel of the government in suits for the dissolution of the Standard Oil, admitted to the committee that his law firm in counsel for subsidiary companies of the steel corporation. He said he had no apology to make to the American people for this connection.

Since 1907, Mr. Kellogg has been prosecuting the Standard Oil under engagement by the department of justice. Before that he had been employed by the government to make arguments in suits against the paper trust and the Union Pacific railroad. Attorney General Wickersham knew of his connection with the steel corporation.

Kellogg Is Angry.
Mr. Kellogg said he had never been asked by anyone connected with the government as to his views as to the legality of the steel corporation under the Sherman law, or the legality of any of its acts or methods of operation. He was incensed by criticism of his connection with the steel corporation.

James Cayley, former vice-president of the steel corporation, told the committee there had been an understanding during many years between the railroads and steel rail makers as to the price of rails. He had never heard of apportioning the tons of the rails among the rail makers or a territorial division of the business. He said there was no danger of an iron ore famine because of the vast supply not only in the United States but throughout the world.

In 1907 and 1908 he attended the famous Gary dinners, but never heard any discussion as to prices or business territory. He gravely stated the only discussions he recalled covered such points as abolishing Sunday labor and improving the welfare of the workmen, together with talk as to general business conditions.

CASTRO UNCOVERED AT HAITI.

Ex-President of Venezuela Discovered on Ship Flying German Flag.

Washington, June 14.—Former President Castro of Venezuela has been discovered aboard the steamship Consul Groutuck, flying the German flag at Port de Paix, Haiti.

The fact was considered of sufficient importance for Secretary Knox to issue a statement which invites the attention of the powers to the fact and expresses the hope that they would all unite to prevent Castro from entering Venezuela and disturbing its peace.

There has been a suspicion in the mind of the state department for several months that Castro was heading to Venezuela to start another revolution and he has been closely watched.

THINKS SUGAR PRICE WILL FALL

Havemeyer's Successor Says Result May Follow Lowering of Tariff.

Washington, June 14.—A reduction of the sugar bill of the American people was predicted by Edwin P. Atkins, head of the American Sugar Refining company, as a probable result of the reduction of the tariff on raw sugar, in testimony he gave to the house special sugar committee.

Putting raw sugar on the free list, however, he said, would result in driving many sugar beet producers in the United States out of business and seriously crippling Louisiana cane producers. Representative Madison of Kansas tried to get the witness to fix a point to which the duty might safely be reduced. He declined.

North Dakota O. A. R. Encampment.
Grand Forks, N. D., June 14.—Commander Albert Roberts called to order this morning the encampment of the department of North Dakota, Grand Army of the Republic, which will continue through tomorrow. An especially interesting feature of the encampment is a museum of war relics collected by Comrade A. J. Pierce of this city and donated by veterans from all parts of the state.

$3,000,000 TO AID SUFFRAGE.

Mrs. Ballinger Leaves Interest on That Amount to Help Cause.
Mount Holly, N. J., June 14.—The principles of women's rights, so strongly advocated by Miss Allen Paul of Morristown during her trip to Europe last year as to cause that young lady's arrest and confinement in English prisons, will have financial support from Mrs. Rebecca Ballinger of Morristown, whose will directs that the income from $3,000,000 shall go to the Woman's National Suffrage association until such time as women are allowed to vote, after which the principal goes to a niece.

One of the bequests made by the testatrix in that her body be cremated and the ashes sprinkled over her flower beds.

War Cry Affrighted Heathens.
Allegheny or Hallelujah Victory was a victory by the Saxons over St. Germans over the Picts and Britons. The Christians all shouted "Alleluia!" and so terrified the heathens that they took to flight.

GO IN FOR DAIRYING IN THE "Stanley Country"

The cut-over Hardwood Lands in the Stanley Country have all the natural conditions necessary for successful dairying, such as climate, soil, pure water and an abundance of clover and wild grasses. When the timber is cut, the clover becomes King and creates pasture unsurpassed anywhere, thus paying for the expense of preparing the soil for the raising of small grains, etc. Wisconsin has over one thousand creameries and nearly two thousand cheese factories, which is one-half of the creameries and one-sixth of the cheese factories in the whole United States.

THE STUMP PROBLEM IS NOW SOLVED

This was formerly the one obstacle that the new settlers in Wisconsin had to contend with. What drainage and irrigation did for the south and west, the powerful land clearing machines, clearing from three to five acres a day, will do for the cut-over lands in Wisconsin.

Why go thousands of miles away from your old home and settle on the expensive lands of the west and south when good fertile lands can be had at $15.00 per acre in the high priced communities within a few hours' ride from the world's best markets.

Call and see me or write for descriptive folder.

F. L. STEVENS
LOVINJOY, BLOCK.

Tuesday next will be circus day, when all the poster promises that have decorated the billboards are to materialize.

The omnipresent clown will be there with a new make-up, but with the same delightfully comical smile. The wonderful trained animals, performing feats seemingly impossible; the darling equestrian; the hair-raising acrobat; the beautiful horses; the hundred and one pictured features will all make their appearance, and the long anticipated enjoyment of circus day will be a reality.

The Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth is practically new this year. The present owners have brought all their combined resources to all in perfecting an organization which it is hoped will win for itself the distinction of being the greatest circus exhibition in the world. Chief among the many features is the sensational ascent of "Jupiter the Balloon Horse." Nothing in the way of circus thrillers has, it is said, in any way approached this latest hair-raising feat. The 10 Viennese in their bird-like flight from perch to perch, high up in the great canvas dome; the Konyota exhibition of sensational acrobatic equestrianism; Miss Ella Dradna in delightfully pleasing equestrian feats; CHHO-Herzogen pony and donkey circus, something new from Paris; Professor De Marten Trapeze, pantomimic artists, assisted by their monkey clowns; the Elephant Brass Band; Konyota's 16 trained tandem stallions in their military drill and dances; Charley the first, a humanized chimpanzee performer; Victoria and Orrin Davenport, a duo of equestrians in a new and novel exhibition; Frederick Derville, bare-back acrobatic expert; Captain Mooney's three herds of performing elephants; a unique exhibition of pachydermic accomplishments; the Dollar Family, a troupe of English acrobats; eight thrilling hip-podrome events. While the stages and circus rings are occupied by the different performers, just in the way of good measure, and merriment, groups of clowns, fifty in all, will circulate in the hippodrome oval, presenting pantomimic comedies and laugh-provoking conceits.

There will be a free street parade during the morning of show day, which the management claims will surpass all previous efforts in the way of splendor and entertaining features.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

WE WERE reading about one afternoon in the little bride's new home. The word "recrudescent" occurred in the text.

Everybody hazarded a guess, but nobody knew exactly what it meant.

"Let's not go on without looking it up," someone suggested. Where's the dictionary Ann?

"It isn't anywhere," she said. "I haven't one. I wanted one so badly that I was going to get one out of the housekeeping money last week—but you know how it always is, a horrid gas bill came in at the last moment and ate it up so I couldn't. I suppose I'm awfully ungrateful, but I really do wish I had a few less pieces of cut glass for wedding presents and had had a good dictionary."

Let me see, wasn't it just last week that somebody wrote to ask me to suggest a wedding present that would be really useful and desirable and enough different not to be duplicated a dozen times?

Perhaps a bride-to-be might be a bit surprised when she unwrapped a ponderous tome instead of a bit of bric-a-brac, but it's ten to one her surprise would all have turned to gratitude for your common sense, before a year had passed.

Here is a suggestion for the person who does not sleep well in the hot weather. It was sent in by a doctor reader.

"Most people have a notion that if they take a bath in the morning, it must be cold, and many people who do not have any too much vitality shrink from that. Now a quick warm bath followed by a cold dash on the face and shoulders is very refreshing, especially if the sleep has not been so good as usual. In fact, it almost takes the place of a night's sleep."

I am the more ready to pass on this suggestion in that I have already tried it two or three mornings when for one reason or another I awoke from my night's sleep unrefreshed, and have found it supplied me with the feeling of freshness and vigor that I lacked.

I am expecting to make steady use of it during the summer.

"No, I can't come over tonight," said the little stenographer lady. "Of course I'd like to but you see it's dad's and mother's anniversary. So we are going into town to dinner and the theatre. That's what we always do—have some kind of a grand 'root.' Last year it was the circus. Both dad and mother are as crazy about the circus as my kids. You don't think it's going to ruin to you? I'd hate to have it. This is one of the biggest events of the year for us."

Doesn't the wedding anniversary "root," when father and mother have no children a good time as children appear to you as a mighty good thing for a family custom?

It does to me.

Practical Housekeeping.

One Solution of the Maid Problem.

PRACTICAL housekeeper has brought forward a suggestion which she thinks will help solve the maid problem.

She says that one reason girls who are over-crowding factories and working in restaurants at low wages cannot be attracted to housework is because of the social stigma. They and their friends must go in and out the back door. They have no place to receive and entertain their friends, especially men, but the kitchen. It is true, that there is something about this that the self-respecting American girl and man resent. And so the girl goes into factories and laundries and such places at net earnings far below what she would make working in the home. And the field of home work is demoralized.

This housekeeper, therefore, suggests that each community should have a Central House, a sort of club house, really, where the maids of that community could live. In reality, it would be their home. The bedrooms should be dainty; there should be a parlor, possibly a recreation room where dances and other social affairs could be given. In addition, if desired, there could be a restaurant for the public, and a training school for domestic helpers. The house might indeed be open to women of other occupations as a place to board. But in no sense should it be a charity. And it should primarily be a home for those who were working in the homes of the community. Here they could receive their friends just the same as they would in their own home or boarding house, were they engaged in some other occupation.

There is something to be said for the suggestion. Without doubt, the social stigma has much to do with many a girl's going into a factory instead of home work. There are other causes to be sure, but this is one. And if this can be removed, it would be well to remove it. With this out of the way, perhaps some of the other objections could be vanquished, and the work gradually cleared of all objectionable features. It is a problem that sadly needs solving. On one side, certain occupations are overcrowded, and girls working at wages impossible to live on. On the other hand, is a field of labor almost deserted. Women certainly need to attack this condition and bring about a readjustment. If the Central House will help, then it would be a wise step for the progressive women of a community to get together and establish a Central House.

Lord Kelvin's Way.

Lord Kelvin said most of his knowledge consisted of how to find the knowledge sought. And after all, the wisest man is but a smatterer.

A HEARTY welcome manifested in kindly and polite attentions, will make a very plain meal more enjoyable than a banquet.

Being Agreeable.

The art of being agreeable is just as easy to acquire as the one of being disagreeable. There are many young girls all over this beautiful land who are cultivating their disagreeable qualities by allowing them to have such frequent exercise.

Selfishness and want of tact are great factors in this development. Being able to put yourself in your neighbor's place and treat him "as thyself," is not easy to do, but is worth working for.

No girl wants to be unpopular; nobody wants to be disagreeable, and as she discovers that she is left often where other girls are taken, it sets her to wondering what is the matter and where is the trouble.

There is one way that may help. We are all alike in caring for many things, so study the things that people like. To sweet. Most of us like pleasant people around us, and we turn away from the girl who always has a grievance.

The very worst of this whole business is that it could have been corrected. Mothers often make children disagreeable, or allow their little dispositions to grow unchecked. They do not realize what trouble is being stored up for the child they love. Many mothers are too busy to study these things, so for their children there is only the self training and the hard knocks which the world will give them to open their eyes.

Meanwhile, mothers will go on being selfish and comfortable, all too many of them letting the girl or boy have a good time following his own sweet way, growing up to be disagreeable, selfish, unkind and a source of misery to themselves and all they know.

There is nobody too old to begin over, to study the likable qualities, and when we have learned to keep sweet under trying circumstances, consider it one of the great things worth striving for.

A FACTOR IN LONGEVITY.

The majority of cases of extreme longevity have been of persons having "neither poverty nor riches," but those who are least liable to go to excess in eating or in living otherwise, and who have few of the cares incident to high living or the strain of professional or business life; from which the conclusion is drawn that whether one wishes to live to the century mark or not, health, efficiency and comfort in advanced years can best be maintained by avoiding these cares as far as possible, not by avoiding business and society, but by cultivating a habit of throwing off the cares that are incident to such life, at least when we leave the office; and those who have charge of the home should endeavor to do the same for their own benefit and that of the rest of the family. And one of the best means of enabling all to do this is well chosen entertainment.

AMERICAN FLAG BIRTHDAY.

June 14.—The birthday of the American flag was June 1777; so "Old Glory" can claim the respectable age of 134 years, being still hale and hearty. On that date the Continental Congress "Resolved, that the flag of the thirteen United States shall be of thirteen stripes, alternate white and red, with a union of thirteen stars of white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." A congressional committee had decided on the design of the flag and their report read as follows: "The stars of the flag represent a new constellation of states, rising in the west. The idea is taken from the great constellation, Lyra, which in the hands of Olympus signifies harmony. The blue in the field is taken from the edge of the Covenanters' banner, in Scotland, significant of a league covenant of the United States against oppression. The stars are depicted in a circle symbolizing the perpetuity of the Union; the ring signifying eternity. The thirteen stripes show the number of the thirteen colonies. The red, the color which in the Roman days was a symbol of defiance, denotes daring, and the white, purity.

Washington was the first to fly the new flag, which he threw to the breeze on the heights of Cambridge.

TALK TO HOUSE-KEEPERS

(By Nellie L. Horn.)

"How green you are and fresh."

"Have you this spring eaten any 'asparagus yet?'"

The weather has been so favorable this year that the gardens have almost fulfilled the glowing promises of the seed catalogs. One of the favorites whose broad glossy leaves form the basis of many a tempting dish, is asparagus.

The French have a way of cooking the greens which is far superior, both from a hygienic as well as an epicurean point of view, to the Yankee way of boiling them up with side pork. After the leaves have been thoroughly washed, boil in as little salted water as possible until tender, and drain. While the asparagus is draining, fry slices of bread (allowing one large or two small slices to each quart of cooked and drained asparagus) in a generous quantity of butter until it is browned on both sides. Pour on a little boiling water, and break the bread up into small bits with a fork. Add the drained greens, a little more butter if necessary, pepper and salt to taste, and when all is thoroughly mixed, serve at once, garnishing with slices of hard boiled eggs.

Crown of Spinach is a new and pleasing soup. Thinly chopped, cooked asparagus, through a sieve, sliced onion, fry the slices brown in butter in the bottom of a large frying pan; add one quart of milk and let it come to a boil. In a sauce pan, melt one-fourth of a cup of butter, add one-fourth of a cup of flour; pour the hot milk slowly over this, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Add two cups of the asparagus puree, season with salt and pepper, and serve with crisp crackers.

Another delightful and most unusual way of serving spinach is in pepper cases. Cut off the stem and of large sweet peppers, and after removing the

Date Muffins

A New Way of Using Dates

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

The value of dates as a food is hardly appreciated. They are wholesome, nutritious, and when used in K & C Date Muffins, make a recipe that is appreciated by the entire family.

K & C Date Muffins

One-third cup butter; 1/2 cup sugar; 1 egg; 1/2 cup milk; 2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoons K & C Baking Powder; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; want 1/2 pound dates.

Cream the butter, add the sugar and the egg, beaten light. Sift together three times the flour, baking powder and salt; add these to the first mixture, alternately with the milk; beat thoroughly and add the dates, stoned and cut in pieces. To bake, have a slow oven until the muffins double in bulk, then increase heat to bake and brown quickly. Muffins baked this way will be light, appetizing and more easily digested.

This is only one of the many appetizing recipes found in the K & C Cook's Book.

The wonderful K & C Cook's Book is substantially bound and printed in fine colors, contains ninety tested and easily made recipes by Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, of the world famous Boston Cooking School Magazine.

MOTHER'S CORNER

BY JULIA CHANDLER.

"All that I am, or ever hope to be, I owe to my Mother."
—Abraham Lincoln.

I F SOME one were to ask me to name the very best—the most successful mother I ever knew—I would not have to think long. Years ago I gave her a name of my own, and I have never had occasion to change it.

The name is Mother-of-Smiles.

I remember so well when she moved into the neighborhood with her six. The Misses Split gave notice to their landlord on the instant. Even the Martins, who have four of their own, and who are fond of children, shook their heads doubtfully over the coming of Mother-of-Smiles and her six.

The very first time I went over to see her she came to me from the back yard—smiling.

"I have been building sand dunes with the boys. It ended in a romp, you know, and I didn't want to keep you waiting," she told me.

She was a little disheveled, but one forgot to look at the loosened hair or the stains of wet sand on her blue chambray dress, because of the shining of her face. Her smile is a radiance suffusing whatever place she may be in. It gets down under your hide and makes you believe with every inch of your heart and brain, that life is tremendously worth while.

Never have I seen such a character builder as the smile of this mother of six!

It is responsible for the way The Six look at life. When they vex her sorely, as they often do, she does not mind them.

She smiles.

She does not hurry and drive Mary, whose duty it is to put the kettle on while her mother dresses in the morning.

The little girl dresses over her dressing, and Mother-of-Smiles sees. "I don't know what I would have done yesterday—how I would ever have gotten down—if I had not found the water for the coffee boiling when I went down to the kitchen," she compliments the child.

Mary looks at her proudly, for her heart is glad because of the praise. She is eager now to go down to the kitchen and set the table, in addition to putting the kettle on, that she may win a surprised smile from her mother.

There is no more lingering over the dressing.

It is the same with all The Six.

If they shirk today, Mother-of-Smiles makes mention of some dear, thoughtful thing they have done for her yesterday, and her praise of the good thing they have done accomplishes more than all the complaining in the world or the temporary shirking could do.

Even the hardest of hard places, where one would naturally expect to find the shadows of discontent, the shadows of complaint, there is only the sunlight of her smile, and in its radiance nothing seems very hard to The Six.

And it talks again through The Six.

I have seen those boys smile in the face of hurts that would make many a grown man wince.

I have seen the little daughters of Mother-of-Smiles radiantly happy over some small pleasure that most children would not consider a pleasure at all, just because it was made wonderful by their mother's smile.

It is a smile that makes mountains of the bright spots upon the universe, and mole hills of the shadows.

It lights the life road of The Six at every turn with optimism and faith.

And I don't believe I mentioned, either, that Mother-of-Smiles is a widow with a ridiculously small income.

seeds and tough membrane, boil for fifteen minutes. Fill the peppers with the chopped, cooked asparagus which has been seasoned with salt, pepper and butter, cover with buttered bread crumbs, and bake in the oven until they are a nice brown.

There is no vegetable that is so often spoiled in the cooking as asparagus. There are two ways in which it may be done so that the tough ends may be cooked soft, and the tender tips overdone. If you have a deep enough sauce pan, the easiest way is to stand the stalks up vertically in the pan, in just enough water to cover the tough part. Boil for thirty-five or forty minutes, and you will find that the whole stalk is tender and edible, which have been cooked by steam, are tender, yet whole. If you have not a deep pan, cut the stalks into inch lengths, laying the tips and the top inch of the stalk to one side. (Now the rest of the pieces slowly in salted water for half an hour, then add the tops and boil ten or fifteen minutes longer.

Fricassee always sounds appetizing, and Asparagus Fricassee does not disappoint one's expectations. Cook a bunch of asparagus, saving the water in which it is boiled. Melt one tablespoon of butter in a sauce pan, work in one tablespoon of flour and one-half a teaspoon of sugar, and add slowly one pint of the asparagus water, stirring constantly. Add the asparagus cut in small bits, one large or two small heads of lettuce shredded, and a teaspoon of minced parsley. Simmer gently for fifteen minutes, season

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eric, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless."

I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. Eschler, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and today holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaint, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it is free and always helpful.

Dr. Brown's Last Year?

The school closes its second year under the superintendency of Dr. J. P. Brown in a few days, his term of office expiring July 1. Although the state board of control has made no appointment as yet, it is not likely that Dr. Brown will be returned to the head institution. He is desirous of taking up other work and probably will not accept the appointment again, as last year he accepted it only after persuasion by the state board of control. Dr. Brown is one of the best superintendents the school has ever known and his departure will be keenly felt by faculty and scholars at the institute. In this city also Dr. Brown has a large circle of friends who will miss him after his departure.

CLASS-PLAY PROVES MOST INTERESTING

Histrionic Ability Is Shown by Members of the Cast in Last Evening's Production of "The Rivals."

With members of the graduating class in the cast of Stephen's famous comedy, "The Rivals," the audience which packed the high school auditorium last evening, enjoyed the clever play. The play, which was the cleverest of the kind ever produced in this city, was a most clever presentation showing the careful drilling of Mrs. Day and the interest of the young actors and actresses took in their difficult parts.

The cool weather did much to add to the pleasure of the evening's entertainment and the audience repeatedly applauded the glib and witty of the numerous who were at the work in hand like veterans, making the first of the graduation week's program a huge success.

Norman Hild in Mr. Anthony Absolute was most at home in his part and was the star and unendingly popular. Very realistic, Gerald Wood, cast for the part of Captain Absolute, his son, was the true lover, the disheveled son and the skilful plotter for his own happiness. As Bob Acres, the first of the entire production, Lloyd Curtis showed marked ability. His part, that of a clownish country bumpkin, gave him an opportunity to display unusual talent.

Winthrop Metcalf played the role of Fustian, Julia's lover, in a most acceptable manner, and good stage presence through his scenes and added much to the production. John Brown was a typical Sir Lucius O'Trigger, the wandering Irish adventurer, ready to fight or snare a pretty girl's lips. David, Thomas and the boy, all actor characters in the production, were taken by John McKinley, Ellis Gehlin, William Groat and Elmer Cuckoo and added much to the production.

Mrs. Malaprop, portrayed by Mary Lauder, proved to be one of the surprises of the evening and even those acquainted with the lines of the production laughed outright at the clever manner in which Miss Lauder took her lines. Lillian Langrish, the lady of the house, whom Captain Absolute, under the masquerade of English Boverley, made love to and won, was well drilled in her part and was the backbone of the love-love drama to perfection. Miss Hazel Ketchum proving her right to the prominent part she was cast for by her ability to act. Gertrude Cassidy, playing the difficult role of Lucy, the supposed simple maid of Lydia, was very clever and played a hard part well.

Taking it all in all it was a most clever production, well staged by a clever director, young people who showed excellent stage presence and acting training. As the premiere to the remainder of the week's program it proved most acceptable and was enjoyed by all who were fortunate enough to attend.

F. P. Starr and Dr. J. V. Stevens of this city, will be in attendance at the head camp meeting of the order, which starts Tuesday morning. Mr. Starr is a member of the law committee and Dr. Stevens is on the credentials committee. They will depart for Buffalo tomorrow or Friday morning.

MEETING OF SAILORS AND SOLDIERS HERE

Rock County Soldiers and Sailors Are
To Meet in This City On August
10th For Annual Re-Union.

Yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the committee of the Soldiers and Sailors Union of Rock county held at the court house it was decided to hold the annual meeting of this organization in this city on August 10. The committee which consists of J. P. Carle, J. L. Bear and L. M. Nelson had as their work, the settling of the date for the annual meeting and also the preparation of the program of the day. The program has not been settled upon as yet, but it will be their plan to get the state commander of the G. A. R. and several others as speakers for the day. It was decided yesterday to hold the business session in the morning at the East Side Odd Fellows hall and to have the exercises and program in the afternoon. These exercises of the afternoon will probably be held in the circuit court chambers at the court house.

The organization is an independent one, made up of the soldiers and sailors, who fought in the civil war and has quite a membership in the county.

FEET WASHING.

At the Salvation Army citadel, 101 N. Main street. There will be a grand special meeting Sunday evening, June 18th, at 8 o'clock, when Major Morton and his son, Percy Morton of Minneapolis, will conduct a foot washing ceremony. Everybody is invited to come and see this interesting ceremony. Major Morton is an old time Salvationist, full of energy in the work of God and the Salvation Army. Being a man of long experience in Christian work, will be able to interest you in the things of the Kingdom of God. His son, Percy, who is a young man, will assist him in conducting these meetings. Major Morton will conduct the open air meeting Saturday night at Milwaukee and River streets. All are invited to come.

PORTUGAL FEARS AN ATTACK.

Provisional Government Hurries More
Soldiers to Frontier.

Lisbon, June 11.—Captain Conceicao, the royalist leader, is reported to be preparing again to cross the Portuguese frontier.

Colonel Barreto, the minister of war, has ordered the Fifth and Sixth regiments to Cazadores, the Fifteenth regiment with Maxim guns to Braga, the Eighth cavalry and Fourteenth infantry to Villa Real, all fully equipped.

The northern and southern frontiers are lined with troops at strategic points. Gunboats are moving in the rivers. All leaves of absence from the Fifth, second, third and fourth divisions of the army have been recalled.

Minister Barreto declares that if the royalists enter the country they will be annihilated.

ARE PUNISHED FOR LOBBYING.

Three University of Nebraska Professors Dealt With by Regents.

Lincoln, Neb., June 14.—The penalty of too great activity as lobbyists at the recent session of the legislature was visited on three professors of the University of Nebraska by the board of regents. H. R. Smith, head professor of the department of animal husbandry, was reduced in rank to be simply a professor and his salary cut down $500 a year. Dr. L. S. Catter and Dr. J. S. Welch, who lobbied against the bill looking to a change in the state medical school, were re-elected members of the faculty, but adjudged to meet reprimand.

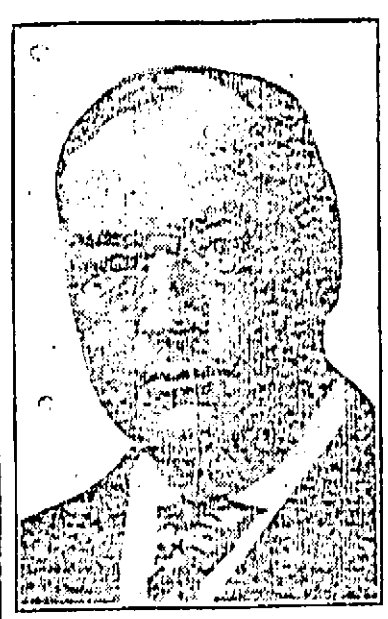

Professor Smith's offense was his activity in favor of the removal of the university to the state farm.

DELAY LORIMER FIRST HEARING.

Taking of Testimony Postponed From June 19 Until the 22d.

Washington, June 14.—Announcement was made by the special senate committee of eight which is to conduct the second investigation into the election of Senator William Lorimer of Illinois that the first hearing will be held in Washington on Thursday, June 22.

The committee had previously determined that the first hearing would be held on June 19, but the change was made after a lengthy conference with Senator Lorimer, who said that his counsel, Judge Eldridge Hancey, is engaged in the trial of a case in Chicago and will probably not be in a position to appear until June 22. Judge Hancey represented Lorimer at the previous investigation.

SEVEN FISHERMEN ARE SAFE.

Four of Party Supposed to Have Been Drowned Return Home.

Toledo, O., June 14.—Four members of the party of seven fishermen who left here in Sunday morning for West Sister Island in Lake Erie, were brought to their homes safely last night. The other three men are on the island waiting until the heavy sea subsides.

Those who returned are John Sengent, his nephew, Ralph Sengent, John Kraft and George Samsen.

The men declared they were unable to leave on account of the high wind and heavy sea.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—And in the meantime Father is shy of those coronation imitations.

BRITZ of HEADQUARTERS

By MARVIN BARBER

ILLUSTRATIONS BY RYAN

Miss Holcomb looked at Britz as if in doubt what to say.

"Be perfectly frank," he advised.

"I believe both have proposed marriage to her," she informed him.

"And Mrs. Missolner—she prefers which one?"

"I don't know," came the prompt response.

"You mean she has never indicated her preference to you? Come now, surely in a burst of confidence she dropped some hint as to her inclination?"

It was plain to Britz that Miss Holcomb revolved against violating the intimate confidences of her employer. To reveal the secrets that had come to her through association with the woman who seemingly had turned her back on her now was so inconsistent with Miss Holcomb's entire character that Britz recognized the necessity of urging his question.

"I am not asking this out of any motive of idle curiosity," he said. "It is of vital importance I should be informed of Mrs. Missolner's relations with Mr. Sanda and Mr. Griswold, as well as of the opportunity each had for obtaining the diamonds."

"I am sure neither of them would or could have taken them," Miss Holcomb said.

"That may be perfectly true," replied Britz. "I do not say either of them took the diamonds, but I must follow every line of inquiry that reveals itself to me. Now, isn't it a fact, Miss Holcomb, that Griswold was the preferred suitor?"

"I do not think so," she said in a low voice.

"You mean she preferred Sanda?"

"Yes."

"Miss Holcomb, do you know the history of the Maharajah diamond?"

A quick spark of memory kindled her mind, and with the first flash, she understood the import of his question.

"Mrs. Missolner told me the history of the stone," she said. "I believe there was some scandal connected with its purchase in India. She told me that when her husband obtained it, there was some talk of it having been stolen from a temple and that the provincial native government tried to regain possession of it. Mr. Missolner succeeded, however, in retaining it as part of his collection."

"What opportunity did the Indian servant have of obtaining the necklace?"

"None at all," she answered hopelessly. "Unless he broke into the safe, and I believe that was not done."

"Mrs. Missolner informed me that on one occasion, when the necklace was lying on the table, the servant entered the room with a box. You were in the room at the time. Was he close enough to the table to touch the necklace?"

"I remember the incident very well," she replied. "I took the box from him at the door and he turned around and went downstairs. I do not believe he was within ten feet of the table at any time."

"I don't know what to think," Britz said, after some reflection. "Almost as soon as a new case hobbles up, it falls down and I have to begin all over again. I have no more questions to ask today."

Britz accompanied the detective out of the pulpit, begging vainly for some word of encouragement. Britz answered his questions with monosyllables, as if he feared to commit himself with regard to the outcome of his investigation. Just before parting, however, Britz said:

"Every line that develops in this case, you can rest assured, will be followed to the end. So far, nothing has been discovered that changes the aspect of the case in the slightest degree."

"The detective walked to Headquarters and entered the office of the Chief."

"Has Donnelly or Carson reported anything new?" he inquired.

"Nothing," answered the Chief. "And you?"

"Nothing that throws any light on the case,"

"Britz," the Chief remarked, as though delivering some weighty conclusion, "I think you're working on the wrong hypothesis. You seem to have decided that Miss Holcomb is innocent. If you will survey the case as it stands, you will have to acknowledge that absolutely everything in it points to her guilt. I do not undertake to say what her motive was in stealing the jewels, unless it was simply the feminine lust for ornaments. I feel certain, also, that she was not alone in the crime. My belief is that she took the necklace out of the safe, turned it over to Dr. Fitch, or someone else, to have the duplicate made, and then returned the false jewels to the safe."

"But where were the paste gems made?" inquired Britz.

"That's for you to find out," snapped the Chief.

"I have personally visited every manufacturer of paste gems in this city and in Philadelphia, Boston, Buffalo, and Washington. My men have been to all the places in the smaller cities. Manufacturers in all the other cities of the country have been visited by the local police, and I feel absolutely sure that the duplicates were not made in this country. Logan is on the way to Paris now, and until we hear from him I don't think we are safe in venturing any opinion as to the identity of the thief. I am receiving daily reports of the movements of Sanda, Griswold, the butler, and the Indian servant, but they show nothing."

"Why do you think Logan will discover anything? Has the real necklace ever been abroad?"

"Mrs. Missolner had it with her on the other side, but I don't know that it ever left her possession."

"The Chief's lips curled into an amused smile.

"Kind of looks as if you're on the wrong scent," he teased.

"Wait till we hear from Paris," Britz returned.

As the detective left the office, he could not help a feeling of depression at the slow progress of events. As yet, the intricacies of the mystery were vaguely outlined in his mind. He saw them as a floating mist, heavy with possibilities but charged with delusive signs of beckoning trails that he instinctively knew led to nowhere. He was still treading lightly the mazes of the case. One false step might be fatal, and he preferred to remain in a crouching attitude of watchfulness, ready to spring from cover at the proper moment.

Much as he deplored his enforced inactivity, he nevertheless had faith in the final outcome. A quick mental survey of the case convinced him that the first necessity was to find the maker of the paste stones. Whoever made the duplicate Maharajah would surely recall having done so. There were few European firms that could have made the stone. It was doubtful whether any American manufacturer could have turned out a substitute to fool the eyes of Mrs. Missolner, even for a night. It is hard enough to get the compact brilliance of the diamond in a small paste gem; infinitely more difficult is it to manufacture a counterfeit Maharajah. Britz knew that whoever copied the cut and facets of that marvelous stone was an expert of high caliber. No faint shimmer of glass could have availed to deceive Mrs. Missolner. The laboratory fire that gleamed from the duplicate was the work of years of experiment, and only in Paris, Britz believed, was the art of manufacturing paste gems sufficiently developed to bring forth a satisfactory duplicate of the Maharajah.

Three weeks, at least, must elapse before word would come from Logan. The emissary sent abroad was himself a diamond expert. Before entering the Detective Bureau, he had been a foreign agent of the United States Treasury Department. If the duplicate necklace was manufactured abroad, Logan would find the manufacturer without delay. Britz had faith in his man, and he waited impatiently through three weeks of torment for the first cablegram. It came finally, and he opened it with nervous fingers.

"I know it!" he burst forth. "They wouldn't have dared to take the original out of the safe without immediately replacing it with the duplicate."

He picked up the message and burst into the Chief's room.

"Read it!" he exclaimed.

"The Chief's eyes drank in the words, but his brain failed to grasp their underlying meaning.

"I don't see that this proves anything," he remarked.

"It proves everything," volleyed Britz. "It proves that the thief was a clever draughtsman. It proves that he spent weeks sketching the necklace, stone by stone, and it proves, too, that he went to Paris to have the duplicate made."

"It proves all that," agreed the Chief. "But who had the opportunity to see the necklace a sufficient number of times and long enough to make the sketches? Who but Miss Holcomb?"

"I will find someone who had almost as good an opportunity," Britz returned confidently.

"And if you do, what will it mean?" asked the Chief.

"It will mean something to work on," the detective said.

The next twenty-four hours Britz spent in the quiet of his home, his mind focused on the problem before him, trying to map out his line of procedure. Plan after plan he discarded as worthless. He could have struck out blindly in the hope of stumbling on a trail, but that was not Britz's method. Crime mysteries were to him scientific problems to be solved by scientific means. Step by step he went over the ground already covered, and then swept the outlook with the keen searchlight of his mind.

By a process of elimination he tried to sift the real thief from the group of suspects on whom his mental efforts were concentrated. He was unable to drag forth the culprit. Then he sought to discern the motive for the crime in the action of each possible criminal, but he could come to no satisfactory conclusion.

"More information, more information is needed before the real work can begin!" he murmured.

In his preoccupation he did not observe the door open and the servant show in a subordinate from Headquarters. Not until the visitor spoke did he become aware of his presence.

"Two cablegrams for you, sir," the subordinate said.

The first cablegram aroused no emotions in the detective.

"Have obtained original drawings. Will call to-morrow with them," the message from Logan read.

"Missions necklace manufactured from drawings by three firms. Original never in possession of manufacturer."

Britz let the telegram flutter to the floor.

"I know it!" he burst forth. "They wouldn't have dared to take the original out of the safe without immediately replacing it with the duplicate."

He picked up the message and burst into the Chief's room.

"Read it!" he exclaimed.

"Drawings for duplicates taken to manufacturer by young woman. Gave name of Ellen Holcomb."

Britz dismissed the visitor, left the house, and hastened to the office of Dr. Fitch. Taking the important cablegram from his pocket, he handed it to the physician. The doctor's eyes lingered on each word. His face paled, his eyes bulged forward, a violent tremor ran up and down his frame.

"This is awful!" he groaned.

"It's great news for you and Miss Holcomb," the detective smiled.

Fitch eyed him in perplexity. The detective met his inquiring gaze steadily, and, slowly folding the cablegram, he said:

"It proves beyond question she had no part in the crime."

"How?" Fitch demanded eagerly.

"If Miss Holcomb had been clever enough to plan the theft, she'd have known better than to go about Paris ordering the duplicate. Also, if she had taken the diamonds, she'd never have permitted one of them to remain in her room in Mrs. Missolner's house. No, whoever stole those gems deliberately tried to throw suspicion on her."

"But who could have conceived such a dastardly crime?" Fitch blurted, a wave of anger sweeping his frame.

"Whoever it was," Britz returned, "either was actuated by enmity to ward the young woman, or knew enough about the Missolner household to realize that suspicion would naturally fall on her, and therefore he decided to use her as a cloak to hide his own identity. However, I now have something to work on, something that will produce quick results. Dr. Fitch, you may tell Miss Holcomb that in my calculations she is entirely eliminated from participation in the crime. You may inform her also that the hunt for the thief has begun."

Before the physician recovered from the pleasant shock of the detective's words, Britz was hurrying down the steps.

(To Be Continued.)

The American Eagle.

The adoption of the eagle as a national emblem by the United States may be all right, but it might have been still better to adopt the goose. We have never heard of the eagle doing anything great, but last month a goose walked into a church in Illinois during the services and drove half the congregation outdoors before she got out herself, by flying through a window. An old gander, when thoroughly mad, is more dangerous than a dog.

The Baffling Language.

English is the only form of human speech of which it can be said that it is not sufficient to know it in order to be able to use it. The Frenchman in England will find it better to speak in French. The Englishman, when he tries his French rather than to listen at your clumsy attempts at English, if any language has to be murdered, he would rather let it be of some body else.—Paris Opinion.

WHY SO WEAK

Kidney Troubles May be Sapping Your Life Away. Janesville People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is Janesville testimony to prove it.

Benjamin Schaller, 239 S. River St., Janesville, Wis., says: "Two years ago I had a great deal of trouble from inactive kidneys. The secretions from my kidneys contained sediment and were otherwise disordered. My back became so lame that it was difficult for me to stoop or lift and I felt all run down. After using Doan's Kidney Pills a short time, these symptoms of kidney complaint disappeared and I enjoyed much better health. I could not be induced to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills were I not certain of their merits."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McLure Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Anticosti.

Anticosti, an island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, is about 140 miles long, by 35 miles wide. Its soil is not considered to be productive, and the few settlers there subsist upon the fisheries. In 1886 M. Menier, the French chocolate manufacturer, bought the island and is making a game preserve of it. He is especially interested in breeding black and other valuable sorts of foxes.

Electric Power for Housework.

The total cost of power for sewing, washing and wringing, mangle ironing, chopping meat, grinding coffee, and polishing silver would be a sum that almost any housekeeper would be willing to pay for a few hours more to call her own, or for being able to take a more independent stand on the servant question. Electricity has advanced far enough now to give her the opportunity she has longed for.—Electrical Review.

What You Make It.

Life in itself is neither good nor evil; it is the scene of good or evil, as you make it; and if you have lived a long day, you have seen all. One day is equal and like all other days; there is no other light, no other night. This very sun, this moon, these very stars, this very order and revolution of things, are all the same your ancestors enjoyed, and that shall also entertain your posterity.—Montaigne; Placays.
